What is Probation?

The OC Probation Department has served the people and courts of Orange County since 1909. Its Deputy Probation Officers supervise approximately 15,000 adults and juveniles at any given time.

OC Probation provides community supervision for offenders selected by the court for monitoring after their release from jail. It holds probationers accountable for their behavior, but also allows them the chance to continue to work to support their families, pay taxes, and repay the victims of their crimes.

Juvenile Facilities

The OC Probation Department operates three correctional facilities for juvenile offenders awaiting court hearings or serving commitments as ordered in Juvenile Court.

- Orange County Juvenile Hall (Orange)
- Youth Guidance Center (Santa Ana)
- Youth Leadership Academy (Orange)

Probation Officers

- Conduct investigations for adult and juvenile courts
- Provide counseling, guidance and referral services to probationers
- As peace officers, conduct surveillance, undertake search and seizure actions, and make arrests
- With collaborative agencies, operate two Youth Reporting Centers for juveniles
- Operate “House Arrest” programs for adult and juvenile offenders using supervised electronic monitoring, including GPS monitoring 24/7.

Community Service

Probation youth perform community service through the Juvenile Court Work Program and the Youth Reporting Centers. These detention alternative programs provide the youth with supportive programming such as cognitive behavioral interventions and support the youth in completion of community based service projects.

Parent Engagement

The OC Probation Department is committed to engaging and supporting parents as they navigate the Juvenile Justice System.

Adult Employment

Gainful employment is a key measure of progress for adult offenders. Not only does employment provide a legitimate source of income, it also offers structure and responsibility and more importantly, reduces the likelihood to reoffend.

During FY 17-18, the Department continued with the funded Supervised Population Workforce Training Grant. This collaborative program funded a full-time job development specialist to provide employment assistance, placement, and training to adult offenders.

Since FY 2006-07 OC Probation has been meeting its goal since that 40% of those who terminate from supervision improve their employment status to “Satisfactory”.

Day Reporting Center

Opened in 2012, the DRC is a statutorily and research-support alternative to custody. The DRC utilizes a variety of evidence-based practices to provide adults with intensive treatment, program services, and on-site supervision with immediate reporting of behavior to assigned DPOs. It is a multi-phase program where offenders progress through three levels of treatment, supervision and an “Aftercare” phase based on their individual behavioral improvements.

Collections

OC Probation collected over $2.4 million in FY 2017-18 from adult and juvenile probationers for restitution to crime victims and for welfare fraud reimbursement.
